

While I studied at Tarneit p-9 college I had the opportunity of becoming one of the sustainability leaders at the school. This experience allowed me to lead the school towards a more environmentally friendly future, implementing various protocols to reduce waste and educate staff and students about sustainability. Some of the innovative ideas that I was able to pitch to the team were having compost bins for food waste at the school and the reduction of paper usage through minimal printing and online work. This role benefited me greatly as it allowed me to experience the responsibility that is required when having such a role and improve my ability to work within a team as leadership is not about controlling but instead inspiring through ideas which can be derived from multiple people.
